

Voicebergs are audio reactive low-poly floating sculptures. Sounds from the microphone are translated into light, causing pulses of colour to travel to the sculptures, which flicker and glow. This provides a thrill for young and old alike.

These can be rented as is or the technology can be modified, scaled, or rebranded for a particular event or installation.

To see the Voicebergs glowing during their month long installation at Van Dusen Gardens, click the video link below.

VIDEO LINK

